

Dragon Braggin'

Acknowledgments, Credits, & Permissions

- Thanks eternally to my wife & creative partner, Kathryn Miller, for all of it: supporting me in my endeavors, being Dragon Braggin''s biggest fan, and being the most fun person to play with.
- Thanks to the wonderful IGX community that has grown up around the Indie Games eXplosion events at Double Exposure events and elsewhere. Your support has made this possible, and that's no empty boast!
- Thanks to Max Lander & Aaron King of the RTFM podcast for their suggestion about hand-tracing photographs to produce low-cost RPG art with a unified aesthetic.
- The game uses these fonts, downloaded from fonts.google.com:
 - Skranji was designed by Neapolitan and is licensed under the SIL Open Font License, Version 1.1.
 - Crimson Text was designed by Sebastian Kosch and is licensed under the SIL Open Font License, Version 1.1.
 - Crimson Pro was designed by Jacques Le Bailly and is licensed under the SIL Open Font License, Version 1.1.
- The images I crafted for my card-based role-playing game, Dragon Braggin', are listed in this document, along with their sources and appropriate permissions.
- Except where noted, all images listed here were created as follows:
 - I downloaded images that allowed derivatives to be made.
 - I hand-traced the photos on my tablet, using a stylus.
 - I am releasing the derivatives under the Creative Commons Attribution-Share Alike 4.0 International license.

This one didn't make it into the final game, but I'm releasing it anyway. I'm rather pleased with the way I was able to combine two pieces into a single image.
